

Carol Rubin, DVM, MPH, is Associate Director for Zoonoses and One Health and Chief of the One Health Office, Division of High-Consequence Pathogens and Pathology, National Center for Emerging and Zoonotic Infectious Diseases, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Dr. Rubin came to CDC in 1990 as an EIS Officer, completed a Preventive Medicine Residency and subsequently served as a Branch Chief at CDC's National Center for Environmental Health. Prior to coming to CDC, Dr. Rubin spent almost a decade in private veterinary practice.

Dr. Rubin has published more than 100 articles in peer-reviewed journals and led numerous national and international investigations and outbreak responses on behalf of CDC.