

Christine Jenkins, DVM, DACVIM
Human-Animal Bond Research Initiative
Foundation

Dr. Jenkins received a DVM from the School of Veterinary Medicine at Tuskegee University in 1984. She completed an internship at the University of Florida and a residency at the University of Tennessee in small animal internal medicine. Dr. Jenkins received certification as a Diplomate, American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine (ACVIM), and is a past president of the ACVIM Foundation Board of Directors.

Employed by Zoetis, Dr. Jenkins has led the Veterinary Medical Services group which is responsible for customer service and product information, adverse event reporting, and pharmacovigilance. She has also directed the American philanthropy and corporate social responsibility strategy, which includes reinforcing all important efforts, including scholarships and support programs.

Dr. Jenkins has over 16 years of experience in the animal health industry. Prior to joining Pfizer Animal Health (which became Zoetis), she was Director of Academic Affairs of the Global Business Channel at Hills Pet Nutrition, where she was responsible for the support of all American Veterinary Medical Association accredited colleges of veterinary medicine and veterinary technician programs. Dr. Jenkins began her career in the animal health industry with Pfizer Animal Health Technical Services, and was Technical Director of Regulatory Affairs at Merial before joining Hills.
