

Who's Who in One Health

FDA One Health Steering Committee

1. Organization/ Group Name

U.S. Food and Drug Administration One Health Steering Committee (OHSC)

2. Description and Scope of One Health Activities

FDA's One Health Mission is "FDA collaborates with stakeholders across disciplines and sectors to promote the health of humans, animals, and the environment using science, technology, and innovation."

FDA's One Health Vision is "Optimal public health outcomes for humans and animals in their shared environment."

The FDA OHSC provides its Center members the opportunity for a meaningful exchange of information and collaborative approaches to meeting common needs related to One Health. OHSC was established to improve intra-agency and interagency communication and cooperation on public health issues requiring a cross-agency focus in the One Health arena. FDA fosters collaborations, research and development opportunities, and educational and communication activities across various disciplines to improve population health. In partnership with the Offices of the Commissioner and the Centers within the Agency, the FDA One Health Steering Committee provides collaboration and support for the Agency's One Health work.
